Description :

Prsentation de l'diteurAll truth is subjective or so David believes. A New Yorker in his early thirties, he moves to Paris to work for an international aid agency. He enjoys the challenge of his new job and the understated love affair he embarks upon with the quintessential Parisian Colette, but then his carefully scripted story goes awry. After experiencing a bout of forgetfulness he visits Saint-Jude in the south of France for a period of rest and recovery. As he struggles to regain his memories he keeps bumping into people who seem to know him better than he knows himself, including the lovely Celeste who encourages him to confront the deeper implications of his missing memories. She leads him to the point where he must decide what is real and what isn't in a world full of contradictions and illusions.
